Each of these three world-class instrumentalists have had a long association as artist-faculty with the Aspen Music Festival and after twenty years of friendship and music-making, Aspen String Trio members David Perry, Victoria Chiang, and Michael Mermagen decided to create an ensemble, which has now performed across the globe in the world's most prestigious venues. The Trio is currently the Ensemble in Residence at the University of Baltimore. One notable upcoming recording project for the Trio is the recording of the string trios and other music of Martinu for the Naxos label.

"Their impeccable phrasing, crisp attacks, and near-Germanic warm passion for this music was always in evidence, as was their drive for perfection."
